

Contents

---

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Introduction . . . . .  | 11  |
| The Iron Law of Oligarchy . . . . .                               | 15  |
| Acknowledgements . . . . .  | 19  |
| Chapter 1: Overview  |     |
| Thesis . . . . .  | 21  |
| The English Constitution . . . . .                         | 21  |
| Proposed Solutions. . . . .                                       | 27  |
| A Very English Revolution . . . . .                               | 33  |
| Summary . . . . .   | 42  |
| Chapter 2: The Political Party: A Short History. . . . . . | 45  |
| Whiggery Pokery. . . . .  | 48  |
| Chapter 3: Candles in the Wind                             |     |
| Softly, Softly, Catchee Monkey . . . . .                          | 63  |
| Judicial activism . . . . .                                       | 67  |
| Electoral reform . . . . .  | 72  |
| Burke: ‘The speech to the electors of Bristol’ . . . . .          | 74  |
| Democracy Direct . . . . .  | 75  |
| Bringing Home the Revolution . . . . .                            | 83  |
| The Return to Eden. . . . .                                       | 88  |
| A Very English Revolution . . . . .                               | 96  |
| Chapter 4: The Crown . . . . .                             | 97  |
| The Advantages of Freehold Tenure . . . . .                       | 101 |
| The Appointment and Removal of Ministers . . . . .                | 102 |
| Ministerial responsibility . . . . .                              | 106 |
| The First Lord of the Treasury . . . . .                          | 112 |
| Foreign Affairs . . . . .   | 114 |

---

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Chapter 5: . . . In Parliament . . . . .               | 117 |
| The Lords Advocates . . . . .                          | 118 |
| Composition and function. . . . .                      | 118 |
| Private Members' Bills. . . . .                        | 121 |
| Appointments system . . . . .                          | 121 |
| Remuneration and terms of service. . . . .             | 123 |
| The Commons. . . . .                                   | 124 |
| Mechanisms of selection. . . . .                       | 125 |
| Remuneration and terms of service. . . . .             | 128 |
| Lobbying. . . . .                                      | 135 |
| Constituency Affairs . . . . .                         | 136 |
| Parliamentary Committees. . . . .                      | 138 |
| Conclusion: Burke Revisited. . . . .                   | 140 |
| Chapter 6: The Fourth Estate. . . . .                  | 143 |
| Chapter 7: On Limited Government                       |     |
| Politics Without the Passion . . . . .                 | 153 |
| The Principle of Subsidiarity. . . . .                 | 156 |
| Chapter 8: The New Leviathan. . . . .                  | 163 |
| Appendix: Conjectures and Refutations                  |     |
| The Dialectical Deficit . . . . .                      | 173 |
| The Terminator, or the Creature from the Pit . . . . . | 178 |
| Politics without Patronage? . . . . .                  | 180 |
| Bread and Circuses . . . . .                           | 182 |
| Rulers and Leaders . . . . .                           | 183 |
| Bibliography . . . . .                                 | 189 |
| Index . . . . .  | 197 |