

Contents

Preface	vii
List of Abbreviations	xiii
Introduction. T. H. Green, Philosophy and Liberalism	1
Some Observations on Historical Method	24
Chapter One. Career, Influence, Reputation
1.1. Idealism, Analytic Philosophy and Religion	31
1.2. The Education and Career of an Academic Philosopher.	38
1.3. The Question of Influence	59
1.4. Empiricism and Naturalism in the Nineteenth Century	63
1.5. The Professionalization of Philosophy	70
1.6. Philosophy in the World: Green and Liberalism	72
1.7. Academic Radicalism	78
Chapter Two. Green's View of Self and Society
2.1. Introduction	85
2.2. Being and Knowing	89
2.3. The Moral Motive and Self-Realization	94
2.4. The Moral Ideal and the Eternal Principle	105
2.5. Rights and Civil Society	110
2.6. The State and Political Representation	114
2.7. Property	117
2.8. Duty, Virtue, Freedom	123
Chapter Three. Rational Religion, Sittlichkeit and the Christed Self
3.1. Introduction	129
3.2. Religion, Reason and Romanticism	134
3.3. Green's Religious Inheritance	142
3.4. 'German' Innovations and Green's Theology	150
3.5. Liberal Theology and the History of Dogma.	161
3.6. Green's 'Four Lectures on the English Revolution' (1867)	172

3.7. Modern Puritans and the Dissidence of Dissent	177
3.8. Religion, Morality, Community: Idealism vs. Arnoldism	182
Chapter Four. Religious Principles and Social Change
4.1. Introduction	187
4.2. Liberalism and the Dissenting Experience	192
4.3. Anglicans, Dissenters and Education, 1833–1870	203
4.4. Green and the Idea of National Education	210
4.5. Temperance	217
4.6. Green and Dissent at Oxford	222
4.7. The Nonconformist Social Conscience	226
Chapter Five. The Social Gospel and Radicalism, 1870–1900
5.1. Introduction	229
5.2. The Social Turn of the 1880s	231
5.3. Two Concepts of Liberty?	233
5.4. The Social Turn and ‘Organic Reform’	236
5.5. Green, Christian Meliorism and ‘Socialism’	247
5.6. Radicalism and Moral Fervour: the Gladstonian Impulse	261
5.7. The Dissenters and Christian Socialism	270
5.8. Green and the Unsectarian Social Service Ideal	274
Chapter Six. Green and Political Memory
6.1. Right and Left Greenians	279
6.2. Radical Conservatives	283
6.3. Intellectuals in Politics and the Idea of Character	287
6.4. Charity, Voluntarism, State Action	293
6.5. Rights of Nations and Anti-Imperialism	299
6.6. Green and the Rights of Women	302
6.7. Green as Philo-Dissenter	309
Epilogue. Green, Social Philosophy and the Question of Belief
	317
Selected Bibliography
I. Manuscripts and Unpublished Primary Sources.	325
II. Green’s Published Writings and Letters; Reported Speeches.	326
III. Parliamentary Papers and Public Documents	326
IV. Sources Originally Printed Before 1914	327
V. Other Printed Sources Since 1914	333
VI. Theses and Dissertations	361
VII. Unpublished Conference Papers.	362
Index	363