

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Abbreviations	ix

Chapter I: Introduction: Why Oakeshott?

1 Oakeshott and Politics: The Perspective.	1
2 Politics, History and Political Philosophy; Remarks on the Style of Reading and Presentation.	8

Chapter II: Platforms of Understanding

1 Introduction: The "Isms" in Discussion	17
2 Liberalism.	19
Raz, Berlin and Oakeshott	23
Oakeshott and Rorty's Postmodern Bourgeois Society	42
3 Conservatism	53
On Bernard Crick's Critique	57
Robert Devigne and Oakeshott's New Conservatism	65
Idealism	69
5 Conclusion	78

Chapter III: The Changing Conception of Politics

1 Introduction: Politics: Corrupted and Proper	81
2 Power/Authority.	85
Power and the Critique of Rationalist Politics	89
Power and the Critique of Popular Government	98
The Problem of Oakeshott's Concept of Authority	104
Oakeshott and Hobbes – on Authority by Reason and Political Authority	112
Talking Politics	118
3 Ideology/Tradition	124
The Practical Doctrines	126
Ideology as a Distortion of Politics	131

Traditional Politics	143
The Defence of Parliamentary Tradition	148
Political Actors	159
Continuity, Contingency and Change	187
The Analogy of Language.	197
Ideology and Tradition in Political Activity	205
4 Conclusion.	212
Chapter IV: Rationalism in Politics/Rational Politics. . .	219
Chapter V: Oakeshott and the Voyage of Theorizing
Political Activity	227
Bibliography.	231
Index	241